Ring, bells ring, with your mollow din, Ring the old year out and the new year is? Like the voices of birds from the old stay spire Let your silvery music richigher ad higher; Floating abroad over the hillsde bare In billows of a und on the tremulous air, Let it rise and from the fitting ale; Tell ov doubt. Every ports. For the the remotest must not for the belome rise of the new year's star!

Bing the old year out, with its sighs and tear Its withering heart-aches and tiresome toars;
Away with its memries of doubt and wrong,
Its cold deceits and its cavyings strong,
All its pandering lures to the falte, ing sense,
All its pitful shams and cold pretense,
We will heap them together and bind them fast To the old man's load as he totters past. To the old man's load as he doctor pass.

The ills that he brought he may take again

Keep we the joys, let him bury the pain!

Bing s ft, oh bells, as he goes to rest

Far in the shades of the darkening West.

Ring bells, ring, with your merry din! The old year has gone with its care and sin! Smiling and fair, at the eastern gates, Clad in tinted light, the new year waits! Welcome him in with the resy band, Who wait the wave of the beckening hand. Hope, with her wreaths or sweet Byring flowersJoy for the Summer's glowing hours, Plenty of peace for the fruitini Fall, And love for all scasons—best of all. For ourself, one word. We have labored most faithfully for the benefit of our readers during he past year and have endeavored, to the best of our poor abilities, to make this department of the paper as complete as possible. We have met with much to dishearten and much to encourage us in the attempt. As is the way of the world, many have criticised us harshly and some-a few-have spoken to us words of good cheer. Looking back upon the labors of the past we forget the former and remember only the latter, and the recollection brings with it a determination to renewed endeavors in the future.
